

Rationale

This collaborative presentation of all Lit 11 classes is a culminating activity that aims to capture the best of the students as they work together in exerting effort to apply the skills and values they learned from the literature class to achieve excellence as future UC graduates. The university aims for its students to become lifelong learners, effective communicators, socially collaborative individuals, team players, and ethically responsible citizens. Furthermore, in this activity, students must uphold the university's core values, innovation, camaraderie, alignment, and excellence, which are given significance in formulating the concepts and variety of performances.

The literature class is intended to teach the students in learning how significant the values and culture of the different literary works are in their daily lives, both personally and professionally. It aims to develop students' comprehension and understanding skills that they can utilize as they pursue their respective future careers and become globally responsible citizens. In addition, students are expected to overcome any challenges and solve any problems that may affect their lives in a local or global context, especially in today's digital era. Nevertheless, this could not be all captured in a classroom setting. Thus, this activity is a good avenue for them to showcase their improvements and learnings as critical thinkers and collaborative learners to a greater audience.
